U OFFERS THREE-IN-ONE ENTERTAINMENT PACKAGE

The University of Montana School of Fine Arts will offer an unprecedented entertainment package of three major productions on one ticket, Dean Charles W. Bolen announced today (Jan. 20).

The productions are the Anouilh adaptation of "Antigone," which will run Feb. 9-12, with Donald Davis of the New York stage starring as Creon; the University Band Concert, Feb. 25, with trumpet virtuoso Doc Severinson as guest artist, and the Masquer-Opera Workshop production of "Susannah," Carlyle Floyd's contemporary opera, April 13-16.

The special ticket is good for three admissions in any combination; i.e., it admits one person to each show, three persons to one show, etc.

Proceeds of ticket sales will help finance the UM Band Midwest tour and appearance at the National College Band Directors' Association Convention in Ann Arbor, Mich., in February, Dean Bolen said.

Tickets are available at the Fine Arts office in the Music building, he added.
